Social Influence and Negotiations

Science-backed methods for increasing your influence, generating more sales, and reaching the most optimal agreement

Format: Corporate in-house program (In-person or online)

Overview

Learning how to negotiate effectively is an essential skill to getting things done. Expanding your influence is vital for successful leadership. In this program, we will teach you the theory and application behind the 7 science-backed ways to increasing your influence. We will explore the psychology behind how most people make decisions. Further, we will practice negotiation strategies that will help maximize the value you will get from an agreement, achieve win-win outcomes in collaborative efforts, and resolve conflicts between one or more parties.

Lastly, we will cover the ethics behind exercising power and influence in order to harness them to achieve positive outcomes for the good of those who you lead and serve.

Key Takeaways

- Understand the psychology behind how most people make choices. Learn the role of mental shortcuts in decision-making.
- Master the 7 science-backed ways of increasing influence and getting people to say, “Yes”, to your request

- Obtain the tools needed to successfully negotiate in different situations; Know how to effectively “slice the pie” in distributive negotiation scenarios and to “expand the pie” in integrative scenarios.
